

Xerographic Process - Xerographics

Development

As the latent image rotates past the Developer Roll, the negatively charged toner particles are repelled by the negatively charged background areas and are attracted to the very low negatively charged exposed image areas. This process is also called Negative Charge Development.

Development